ALLOWANCE

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-27 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Independent claims 1, 5, 10, 14, and 28 define an image forming device/method for printing image data stored in electronic tag, wherein said electronic tag is equipped within an electronically tagged printing paper and said tag further stores attribute information as depicted in figures 3 and 4. The claimed device/method comprises a judging unit/step for judging whether copy-prohibiting information exists in the attribute information and a reading unit/step for reading said image data from said electronic tag when said judging unit/step judges that no copy-prohibiting information exists. The claims distinguish over the prior art in that said reading unit/step does not read the image data from said electronic tag when said judging unit/step judges that copy-prohibiting information exists. The claimed combination prevents the image forming device from reading the image data from the tag when the copy-prohibition is desired.

The most relevant prior art Teraura (U.S. Patent No. 6,827,279) teaches a method of scanning a printing paper having an RFID tag for storing the copy-prohibiting field (fig. 11). Teraura further teaches the method of reading an image on the paper together with the information in the RFID tag (col. 7, lines 60-66). However, Teraura does not teach the reading unit/step for not reading the image data from said electronic tag when said judging unit/step judges that copy-prohibiting information exists.

Many prior art references teaches the concept of reading the image data from an electronic tag mounted on a printing paper. For example, Ostrover et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,585,154) and Tanaka et al. (Japanese Patent Publication No. 2000/0285203) teach the concept of storing image data in an electronic tag mounted on a printing paper and reading the image data from the tag for printing. However, both references do not teach the reading unit/step for not reading the image data from said electronic tag when said judging unit/step judges that copy-prohibiting information exists.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion
